St. Edward's Shrine. Westminster Abbey is the most famous, as well as one of the most beautiful, ecclesiastical buildings in London. It was founded by Edward the Confessor, and reconstructed in the reign of Henry III. Behind the High Altar is the shrine of the founder, first erected by Henry II. in 1163, and reconstructed by Henry III. In the niches of the side of this shrine sick persons used to crouch all night in order to be cured of their diseases by contact with the saint's coffin.
